CHARGES AGAINST SCHWAB NOT TRUE, COMMITTEE FINDS

Authorized Statement, Given
Out by Representative
Steele, Based on Testimony and Evidence.

MEMBERS RETURN TO WASHINGTON

Opinion Made Public After Informal Discussion of Statements and Documents
as to $269,000 Voucher.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Charges that Charles M. Schwab had received payment from the Government for expenses while serving as director-general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation were not proven and not true, the Walsh Investigating Committee declared today in an authorized statement.

The opinion of the committee was expressed in a statement by Representative Steele, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, who said it was based on testimony and documentary evidence, while he individually felt a great injustice had been done to Schwab.

After returning here today from New York, the committee discussed informally the testimony relating to a voucher for $269,000 alleged to have been paid to Schwab for expenses and directed Steele to make a statement. Steele authorized the following:

"When asked if he cared to make any statement relative to the hearing held by the select committee on Shipping Board expenditures on the charges that Mr. Charles M. Schwab had received payment for expenses while serving as director-general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Mr. Steele replied that members of the committee who heard all the testimony and saw the documents were satisfied that the facts were not proven and further that it was not true.

"Mr. Steele further stated this statement was made with the knowledge and consent of the members of the committee."

SCHWAB BREAKS INTO TEARS AT SHIP INQUIRY

By Associated Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—As he was about to conclude his testimony yesterday afternoon before the House committee investigating the Government shipyard, Charles M. Schwab broke down and wept. He had not all day in the session room in the Hotel Pennsylvania waiting to be heard. He had listened to accounts in the great Bethlehem steel plant he had built up and which cost $269,543.33 had been paid to him while he was working for the Government. They had denied the testimony of Percy Morse, an accountant, that $269,000 of the cost of ships being built, but had heard the controller of the company talk of "year that things would be brought out."

As he sat at a table facing the members of Congress, Chairman Walsh referred to his hesitancy at assuming the task of Government shipbuilding even at the request of President Wilson. Schwab nodded and then told about it. His voice at first was soft and faltering. Then as he briefly outlined the work he and his associates did to battle the German ship for ship, enthusiasm buoyed him. His voice strengthened. He finished strong and smiling. He reiterated that he did not receive one penny for his services.

No Questions About Vouchers.
Chairman Walsh turned to his colleagues and gave them an opportunity to question Schwab. Both Representatives Steele and Connolly said they had no questions to ask. Not an investigation had been put to him directly on the matter that brought Schwab there—the voucher.

Representative Foster had the last opportunity. He hesitated. The committee had been kindly to Schwab. Representative Foster, who came from Athens, O., and had driven home some embarrassing questions to other witnesses, merely re-

DRY LAW FINE TO DEPEND ON HOW MUCH MAN CAN BORROW

East St. Louis Judge Tells Him to See How Much He and His Friends Can Raise.

The fine to be assessed against Feddele Farcus, a laborer, living near Belleville, found guilty by a jury in the Federal Court at East St. Louis yesterday on a charge of having a quantity of liquor in his possession, probably will depend upon his borrowing powers.

After the jury returned a verdict of guilty, Judge English asked Farcus how much money he had. He replied "About $300."

"How much can you and your friends raise?" asked Judge English. Farcus replied that he was unable to state with any degree of accuracy.

"Well, find out," said Judge English, "and return to the courtroom here before court adjourns Wednesday."

Farcus was released on the same bond which was in effect pending his trial.

Peter Geddes of Belleville was found guilty by a jury of having six gallons of whisky in his possession, and was fined $250 and costs, which he paid.

SAYS MOUNTAINS ARE MOVING

California Professor Reports One Mount Jumped 6.6 Feet.

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 26.—The mountains of the coast range in the vicinity of San Francisco are moving slowly northward, causing enormous strain and producing rebounds in one of which, Mount Tamalpais jumped back 6.6 feet, according to Prof. A. C. Lawson of the University of California, in a geological bulletin made public yesterday.

Tamalpais moved northward 10 feet between the years 1854 and 1906 and then hopped back 6.6 in 1906 at the time of the San Andreas slip, which caused the great earthquake of that year. Prof. Lawson asserted, Mount Hamilton, near San Jose, he said, moved northward at the rate of four feet a year from 1893 to 1903, but after a sudden shift in that year continued at the rate of 2.2 feet a year.

The geologist, traveled northward from 1900 to 1917 at the rate of one foot a year, and since it is not the San Andreas fault, on which the great slip of 1893 occurred, the town has held this gain.

DOCTOR MAKING 838-MILE CALL

Will Travel by Dog Sled When He Leaves Railroad in Alaska.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 26.—Dr. J. B. Beeson, surgeon in the Government hospital at Anchorage, is hurrying to the end of the Government railroad on the first leg of an 838-mile journey to Iditarod, where he was called by the serious illness of Claude E. Baker, a banker.

At the end of steel, Dr. Beeson will be met by Bill Cory, a Harry Vannard, famous "mushers," who will pilot him by dog sled to Iditarod. Relays of fast dog teams have been arranged for along the route and crews of men have started to break trail from the other end. Dr. Beeson estimated that the trip would require 14 days.

STRIKE OVER PIGEONS' DEATH

Natives of Bombay Thus Resent Killing of Sacred Birds.

BOMBAY, British India, Jan. 26.—The strike between cotton and cotton burlap markets were closed Monday and a general hartal, or religious strike, is proposed in consequence of a grave incident attendant upon the killing of two pigeons in the street by two European boys. The natives consider pigeons sacred. A crowd of angry Indians gathered and remonstrated with the boys. The police took charge of the boys and also several Hindu boys, with whom they had been fighting.

The crowd followed, demanding the release of the Hindu boys, whereupon the police charged and scenes of intense excitement ensued. The natives stoned the police and several persons were hurt and 17 arrested. Native merchants are meeting to consider what steps should be taken.

BANKERS IN PRISON TEN HOURS AFTER PLEADING GUILTY

Two Brothers, Officials of Coffeyville (Kan.) Institution, Sentenced to 30 Years in Penitentiary.

WARDEN TO PUT THEM TO WORK IN COAL MINE

Allen S. and Rufus P. Newman Confess to Embezzlement When Confronted by Evidence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Jan. 26.—In less than 10 hours after they had pleaded guilty of embezzlements and forgeries, Allen S. Newman, president of the People's State Bank of Coffeyville, and his brother, Rufus P. Newman, vice president of the institution, were at the State penitentiary at Lansing to begin maximum sentences of 30 years at hard labor.

Confronted by evidence found by bank examiners who closed the bank Wednesday night, the Newmans agreed to go into court and enter pleas of guilty. This they did yesterday morning. They were sentenced immediately by Judge Joseph H. Holden. Then they were put on a train for the State prison before Coffeyville in general was aware of the fact that the Newmans had confessed to wrecking the institution.

No warrant had been issued against the Newmans and in fact the bank apparently had not been implicated with the shortage. Monday night, however, Walter Wilson, State Bank Commissioner, called them for a conference and then confronted them with the evidence which had been found in an examination of the bank's books. The Newmans then decided to plead guilty.

The bank was closed here Thursday morning. Saturday, a forged note for $1500 appeared at one of the banks for collection. A relative of one of the Newmans disclaimed owing the note and stated it was a forgery. That was the beginning of a series of revelations which resulted in the confessions of the Newmans.

Confessions of guilt were entered by each of the two embezzlers and misappropriation of the bank's funds and to six counts of forgery, there being six separate forged notes, it is said.

Judge Holden sentenced each to serve an indeterminate term of one to 15 years on the two embezzlement charges; and each on to seven years each on four of the six forgery charges. The two sentences for embezzlement and forgery run concurrently; that is, the bankers are serving double sentences, a maximum of 30 years, on the embezzlement charges and 25 years on the forgery charges.

Before entering pleas the Newmans assigned to Bank Commissioner Wilson, in trust for their creditors, all their property, consisting of a number of industrial enterprises in this city. Besides, the Newmans had stock in several industrial enterprises and also owned a number of oil leases, principally in Montana and Labeite counties, Kansas, and Nowata County, Oklahoma.

Allen S. Newman, president of the bank, was formerly secretary of the Emporia Commercial Club. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church here. He was not a plunger and friends attribute his financial downfall to unsound banking practices and too many-sided interests.

$35,000,000 A MONTH BEING COLLECTED IN BACK TAXES

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Says Large Sums Have Been Found, Due Government.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Approximately $35,000,000 a month in back taxes is being collected by the Government, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams said today.

Large sums have been found due the Government by the result of a field and office audit of returns. The audit of the 1917 returns, he said, probably would be completed by March 1. Work has been started on the 1918 returns.

Negro Legislator Offers First Bill

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 25.—Representative Walthall Moore of St. Louis, only negro member of the Legislature, has introduced in the House his first bill, to expand the Lincoln Institute into a State university for negroes, and appropriate $1,000,000 for this purpose. This is one of the things demanded from the Republicans by negroes during the last campaign, but the Republican platform convention refused to include it in the platform.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S HEALTH IS GREATLY IMPROVED, COX SAYS

Executive "Heavier and More Robust in Every Way" Than at Time of Former Visit.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—There has been a "very marked change" for the better in President Wilson's condition since last summer, Governor James M. Cox of Ohio declared today after a 40 minutes' visit to the President at the White House. The executive, Cox said, was "heavier and more robust in every way" than he was on the occasion of the former Governor's call last summer soon after he had been nominated as the Democratic presidential candidate.

Describing his visit as merely a "friendly" call, Cox refused to go into details as to his conversation with the executive. He did say, however, that his projected trip to Europe in June was talked about and added that he would not take any "messages" to Europe for the President.

Cox emphatically disclaimed any purpose in his call to talk politics and jokingly remarked that he had come to the White House to tell the President that he had decided "not to move in."

SENATOR AND LABOR UNION HEADS URGE TRADE WITH RUSSIA

Secretary Alexander Asks Congress for $50,000 Appropriation for That Purpose.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Removal of all Government restrictions on trade with Russia was urged today by Senator Timothy Healy, Democrat, of Illinois, and officials of organized labor.

Timothy Healy, president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, pointed out what he termed "the demand of labor for trade with Russia," saying that the opening of the Russian markets would absorb the surplus commodities in this country and give work to the three and a half million unemployed men.

"In view of the fact that our country is suffering throughout the United States," Healy said, "and because the United States policy in the past has always been to leave every country to its own salvation, we feel that our Government's policy now should be to allow immediate resumption of trade with Russia."

Secretary Alexander of the Department of Commerce today asked Congress for $50,000 to develop trade with Russia.

"This estimate is submitted at this time," he said, "in view of important economic and other developments which make it appear that reliable and trustworthy information on the possibilities of American commerce with the former Russian empire will be important and useful before the end of this fiscal year."

JAPAN REPLIES TO U. S. NOTE REGARDING LANGDON'S DEATH

Fails to Meet Points Raised; Reply Promising Inquiry, Regarded as Acknowledgment of Note.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Japan today replied to the American Government's note regarding the killing of Naval Lieutenant W. H. Langdon at Vladivostok by a Japanese sentry with the promise of a "thorough inquiry" into the circumstances surrounding the incident.

The Japanese Government's note was said at the department not to meet the points raised by the American Government in its communication, and was regarded as little more than an acknowledgment of the receipt of the American note.

At the same time the Navy Department was advised by Admiral Gleaves at Vladivostok that the American naval court there had decided that Lieut. Langdon was the subject of "an unwarranted attack" by the Japanese sentry.

The finding of the court as summarized by Admiral Gleaves was that "Langdon was blameless and that the Japanese sentry fired the first shot and that Langdon was the subject of an unwarranted attack by the Japanese sentry."

WITNESS BLAMES SHIP CAPTAIN FOR DEATH OF 273 PASSENGERS

Says All on Princess Sophia Could Have Been Saved If Commander Had Given Word.

By the Associated Press.
SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 26.—All the 273 lives lost when the steamship Princess Sophia went ashore on Vanderbilt reef, Alaska, Oct. 24-25, 1918, could have been saved if the Sophia's commander had given the word, Capt. E. Harrington, former first mate of the lighthouse tender Cedar, which stood by the stricken ship, declared in testimony in United States court here yesterday. He was a witness in the hearing on the application for a limitation of liability in connection with the loss of the vessel.

Capt. Harrington declared all arrangements to rescue passengers on the Princess Sophia had been made aboard the Cedar and that the hall-boat schooners, King and Winge, and the Elfinor, were ready to go to the assistance of the stranded ship.

AMERICA RANKED NINTH IN REPORT ON EDUCATION

Congress Urged to Establish National Department and Provide Federal Aid for School Facilities.

ILLITERACY TERMED NATIONAL PROBLEM

Statistics Cited to Show Lack of Learning Almost Equally Prevalent in All Sections of Country.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The United States was declared to rank ninth among the nations of the world in the general educational level of its people, in a report of the House Committee on Education, made public today, recommending passage of the Smith-Towner bill to establish a Federal department of education with Federal aid in increasing educational facilities. The country is trailing behind "most of the civilized world," the report said, from the standpoint of its educational advantages.

The proposed measure offers, only means, the report declared, of correcting the present inequality of educational opportunities among the various communities and preventing waste of public funds and inefficiency due to lack of co-ordination among Federal agencies dealing with education.

Illiteracy is a national and not a sectional problem, the report said in citing statistics to show it was almost equally prevalent in every section of the country.

"There is nothing of more importance to our scheme of Government than the education of the people," it continued. "Whatever else may be excluded, there is one thing that justifies a tax on the country it is that which strengthens and supports our public schools."

PROVISIONS OF BILL.

The bill provides for Federal aid to the states in stamping out illiteracy and in raising the standard of the salaries of rural teachers, promoting education in sanitation and hygiene and providing better training for teachers. States which qualify for aid would receive from the Government an amount equal to their own appropriations on the same 50-50 basis by which money is now distributed for good roads purposes.

The bill would authorize Congress to appropriate $100,000,000 annually. According to the report by the committee, however, it is not likely that the total amount would ever be called for in any one year. It absorbs the entire amount the reports say, all the states would have to qualify under all the provisions of the act every year.

Passage of the bill has been warmly urged by the National League of Women Voters and by various educational associations.

The report of the Education Committee, which Representative Foss the report said, "is a masterpiece of the Interior, to the effect that illiteracy alone causes an economic loss to the country of $25,000,000 a year. The committee finds that there is waste and inefficiency due to the lack of co-ordination of the Federal agencies; that low salaries are driving competent teachers out of the profession; that there is inequality of educational opportunities because some communities are unable to support schools, and that the idea of co-operation between the nation and the states in supporting an equalized system of public education is "fundamentally sound."

NOT TO CONTROL STUDIES.

The report denies that the bill intends to give the Federal Government the power to determine courses of study; neither does it contemplate the report said, "any interference with the public or private school management of any state."

Illiteracy is declared to be a national and not merely a Southern problem. While Georgia has 232,000 illiterates it is stated New York has 406,000, and even Massachusetts has 141,000. It is estimated that there are more than 1,000,000 more illiterates in the United States than in the United Kingdom.

The report points out that the bill does not appropriate but merely authorizes appropriations when states meet the requirements for aid. States need five separate heads under which a state may seek aid and "the Federal Government will respond only when the state shall deem its own need in the particular matter of sufficient importance to make at least an equal appropriation."

DISAPPOINTMENT OF 200 DELEGATES EMBARRASSES HYDE

Visitors Who Believed They Were to Advise Governor Find It Was Commercial Club Scheme.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 26.—Disappointment which developed among the more than 200 Missourians who came to Jefferson City today to attend a meeting of the Missouri Federation of Commercial Clubs, in the belief that they had been chosen personally by Gov. Hyde to advise him on his program for expenditure of the $60,000,000 road bond issue, caused Hyde no little embarrassment. Several thousand letters were sent out by T. Lyman Donlin of St. Louis, secretary of the federation, on the Governor's official stationery, informing the recipients that they were appointed executive delegates to attend this congress.

When they arrived and compared notes they discovered it was a scheme to promote attendance, of the details of which Hyde knew nothing. The arrivals had paid their own expenses.

The Governor's secretary, T. N. Ormiston, explained that Donlin had come to him on the afternoon of the inauguration day with the idea, and that he had been given "pocket cards blanc" in the matter with the understanding that only representatives of civic and similar organizations be invited, without regard to politics. Donlin said that about 2600 pieces of mail had been sent to promote the meeting.

MOB TAKES ALLEGED NEGRO SLAYER FROM TRAIN IN SOUTH

Man, Being Returned to Arkansas From Texas Is Removed at Sardis, Miss., and Put in Auto.

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 26.—Henry Lowry, a negro, charged with the killing of O. T. Craig, a planter, and Craig's daughter, Mrs. C. O. Williamson, at their home near Wilson, Ark., Christmas day, was taken from officers at Sardis, Miss., early today by a mob which took him away in an automobile.

A telephone report said Lowry was taken from a northbound Illinois Central train about which he had been returned to Arkansas from El Paso, Tex., where he was captured last week.

A telephone message from Millington, 15 miles north of Memphis, stated that an automobile with several white men and a negro, supposed to be Lowry, passed that town at noon, apparently en route to Richardson Landing, Tenn., on the Mississippi River, almost directly opposite Wilson, Ark., the scene of the killing of Craig and his daughter. The party stopped in Millington long enough to buy a rope, saying it was wanted to wrap around the wheels of the car to prevent skidding.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Suit to set aside the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission allowing railroads to advance passenger fares in Illinois to 5.5 cents a mile, was filed today in the United States District Court here today. The action was started against the Federal Government and in the name of the State of Illinois by Edward J. Brundage, Attorney General of the State.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 26.—The Pencil bill, providing a penalty of death or life imprisonment for first degree robbery, was favorably reported to the Senate today by the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee and recommendation was made that it be passed immediately. A like measure previously received favorable consideration by a House committee.

49,350 UNEMPLOYED IN ST. LOUIS, LABOR SURVEY DISCLOSES

6000 POUNDS OF 'DRY MASH' FOUND BY STINGER'S MEN

Preparation Apparently Being Distributed Through
Wholesale Grocery Firm
Seized in Plover Av. House

Six thousand pounds of a product which the police describe as a "dry mash," apparently being distributed through a wholesale grocery house and suited to the making of high-proof whisky, was seized by members of Capt. Stinger's police clean-up squad in and near the home of Frank Esposito, at 5202 Plover avenue, last night.

The City Chemist this morning reported that the preparation was a mixture of corn meal, sugar and yeast, and that it could be distilled into whisky of great strength. When seized it was in 100-pound sacks, which bore the stenciled marking "dry mash."

Members of the clean-up squad were going through a section of Walnut Park, in Northwest St. Louis, when they noticed a large truck parked in front of a house. Several men were carrying sacks from the truck to a house later found to be the Esposito home. Detectives searched the house. As they entered the basement, they reported, Esposito went through a trap door from the basement to the first floor. Michael Clemente was found hiding behind barrels in the basement. He at first said he lived there, but later gave his address as 4911 Alcott avenue.

In the basement were two coal stoves with fires in them and 200 barrels filled with water.

SIXTY SACKS SEIZED.

Sixty sacks of the meal preparation were seized. Some of these were on the truck and some had been carried to the yard of the Esposito home. The driver of the truck said he was Leo Spitali of 1867 Cooper street. The men who were helping carry the sacks were Dominick Spitali and Antonio Chiona, both of 1807 Cooper street, and Charles Boffo, 5227 Bischoff avenue.

Esposito and Boffo said they were passing by and were asked to help unload the truck.

Esposito said Leo Spitali, whom he had never seen before, came to the house and asked him to help break down and asked permission to leave the sacks there. He said he had no knowledge of the barrels of water in the basement, as he had never seen them and he did not know. All the men were arrested.

Leo Spitali gave the detectives the name of a wholesale grocery store where he said he obtained the sacks. He said he was employed to haul them to a branch of this store in the northwestern part of the city and did not know what they contained. On the way to the branch store, he said, he got lost and mislaid.

KOELN, AT CAPITAL, CONFERS WITH HYDE ON POLICE BOARD

Collector, After Being Questioned, Says He Does Not Know Who Will Be Appointed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 26.—City Collector Koeln of St. Louis came here on the noon train today and conferred an hour and a half with Gov. Hyde on prospective appointments to the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners. Gov. Hyde quizzed Koeln at length on the qualifications of about a dozen St. Louisans who have been suggested for places on the board.

Koeln stated after the conference that Gov. Hyde's attitude was satisfactory, but he did not believe the Governor had made up his mind on the new commissioners yet.

"I know less now than I did when I came here," Koeln said. "I was guessing then, but I am going to quit guessing now."

When asked concerning the attitude he will assume in the St. Louis mayoralty election, Koeln answered that

VITAL REPARATION QUESTION BEFORE ALLIED COUNCIL

French Finance Minister Insists Commission Should Fix Amount as Provided by the Treaty.

PREMIERS DISCUSS MATTER IN PRIVATE

Greeks and Turks, Including Nationalists if Desired, Invited to London to Discuss Treaty Revision.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Consideration of the problem of German reparations, viewed as vitally important by the French, was begun by the Supreme Allied Council here today. Private conversations regarding this question have been going on between David Lloyd George, British Prime Minister, and Aristide Briand, President of the Council, of France, but there was no indication this morning that anything resembling an agreement had been reached. The British Premier held the opinion that the amount of indemnity Germany must pay should be definitely fixed, which view was rejected by M. Briand.

Paul Doumer, French Minister of Finance, opened the discussion this morning. He read a report on the financial situation, and outlined the French viewpoint concerning a solution of the reparations question. The conference then heard Baron Edgar Vincent d'Abernon, British Ambassador to Germany, and M. Doumer's report occupied virtually the whole of the morning session. It was ordered translated and communicated to the allied experts this afternoon. Meanwhile, the conference plans to discuss the Greek and Near Eastern questions and to take up the reparations issue again tomorrow.

The position adopted by M. Doumer in his report, it developed, proceeded to its conclusion, was a return to the terms of article 233 of the treaty of Versailles, which places the duty of determining the amount of compensation to be paid by Germany with the reparations commission. He advocated strict adherence to the terms of that article. At the conclusion of the morning session, Premier Lloyd George and Briand took luncheon together for a private discussion of the reparations question.

Greeks and Turks Invited. The conference in London between the allies and the Greeks and Turks on the Greco-Turkish question, as decided on yesterday by the allied council, will begin probably Feb. 21. Premier Briand will send telegrams to the Governments at Athens and Constantinople today notifying them of the decision of the council. It is understood that the Constantinople government is left free to arrange with the Government at Ankara for the dispatch of a joint delegation representing both the Government and the Turkish Nationalists.

Before reaching this decision the Supreme Council discussed the Greek situation. All the delegations agreed not to modify the policy decided upon at the last conference in London in December, when the allied Ministers at Athens will deal with the Greek Government, but obtain from all official relations with King Constantine, and financial assistance to Greece will continue to be suspended.

The idea of an Orient conference was put forward by Lord Curzon, the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs. The basis of the London discussion will be the treaty of Sevres, which, of course, will have to be revised. According to the present understanding, the proposal is to annul the Greek zone of occupation with the economic zone where the Sultan's sovereignty is re-affirmed, and where there is no Greek force of occupation.

The Belgians desire that the Douglon agreement on reparations be carried out. This agreement provided for a tentative amount of $15,000,000,000 and grants Belgium priority on the first payment, which is not provided for in the Versailles treaty.

Report on Disarmament. Allied military experts today handed the Supreme Council their report on a plan for disbanding German military units. The report gives satisfaction to the French viewpoint on the question, providing for full compliance with all disarmament clauses of the Versailles treaty.

It conceded to Great Britain a further delay which was asked for on Monday before the Supreme Council by Premier Lloyd George. Two thirds of the operation of disarmament must be completed by March 1, and the work must be finished by July 1.

The decision means that the einwohner, or civic guards, and the security police, must be disbanded, as must all other similar organizations not allowed by the treaty of Versailles. The council has still to act on the report, but it was the general opinion this afternoon that it would approve the conclusions of the experts.

Lloyd George Complains. Premier Lloyd George is under-

3,473,466 UNEMPLOYED IN U. S. ON JANUARY 1, FEDERAL SURVEY SHOWS

Only Those Pursuits Listed Under the Head of "Mechanical Industry" Covered in the Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Exceeding by a million and a half previous estimates by industrial leaders, the number of unemployed, figures based on a first nationwide survey just completed by the Department of Labor's employment service show at the beginning of the year the number of persons employed in industry in this country was 3,473,466 less than a year ago.

While in announcing this figure, Director John B. Densmore pointed out that it did not take into account workers who may have found employment in agricultural and other pursuits not covered by the survey, and, therefore, could not be taken as representing the exact number of unemployed, other officials said they believed the army of unemployed might be larger even than the figure given. This was possible, they said, because the survey covered only those pursuits listed under the head of "mechanical industry," and no effort was made to ascertain the reduction in the number of persons employed in other vocations.

Source of Information. The employment service's figures represented a reduction of 26.9 per cent in the number of workers employed in industry as compared with January a year ago and it was announced that they were based "on the consensus of figures from neutral bodies, state labor departments, state commissioners of manufacturers, and municipal employment bureaus, employers' and employees' organizations, and all other sources competent to furnish authoritative information."

Michigan led the states in proportionate reduction, with 32 per cent, and Ohio and Indiana followed with a reduction in employment of 50 per cent each. Next came Illinois with 44 per cent, Connecticut with 43 per cent, Massachusetts with 38 per cent, Wisconsin with 32 per cent, New York 23 per cent and New Jersey 22 per cent.

The largest percentage of reduction in specific industries, 69 per cent, occurred in the automobile and accessories industries, and this was taken to account largely for the great reduction in employment in Michigan. This industry, the announcement said, employed about 3.3 million of the total workers in all industry in the country, yet only 1 million remained in the industry.

A reduction of 35.5 per cent was noted in the textile and related industries, 35 per cent in leather and its products and 32 per cent in lumber and house furniture. The reduction in metals and products, machinery, electrical goods and foundry products was 30.3 per cent, in food and food products 19 per cent, in chemicals, glass, cement and stone products 19 per cent.

stout to have taken umbrage to an article in a Paris newspaper criticising his attitude on various questions, now being discussed by the council, and has complained bitterly to Premier Briand regarding the tone of the French press, says the Oeuvre.

"Since I am treated this way," the newspaper quotes Lloyd George as saying, "I do not see how I can ever go to Paris again."

M. Briand, in consequence of this protest, appealed to newspaper reporters last night to use more moderation in writing of the work of the supreme council.

"I am not supported by all of you," he declared. "Indiscretions, even pure inventions, were printed this morning, which do not please my intentions. If that goes on, you will make it impossible for me to meet meetings to be held in Paris."

Conferences have been begun between British officials and Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States.

From information as to the tone of the discussion among the conferees as a whole it appeared that the general policy being outlined was that Germany must be made to pay all the war and armament costs, and that the question must be put to the conferees, it was said, was how to obtain payment without injury to allied industry.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff
There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to use Resinol. This dandruff cure is entirely new. It gets about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Survey made in 182 cities, the employment service said, showed that numerically, the greatest reduction was in New York City, where 234,243 were reported discharged. McMurry Says Unemployed Could Get Work if They Desired. By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—In the debate on the House emergency tariff yesterday in the Senate, Senator McMurry, Democrat, Ohio, protested against increasing prices of foodstuffs, by tariffs, from at least 3-600,000, to 4,000,000, per cent unemployed. Senator McMurry replied that those unemployed were not suffering, that they could obtain work if they desired, but refused to work for wages which manufacturers could afford to pay.

of 796,826 there are 81,000 unemployed, which is said to be a conservative figure. The automobile industries there also are responsible in a great measure for the situation.

"Chicago with about 3 1/2 times the population of Cleveland and about three times the population of St. Louis, has 81,000 unemployed."

"Baltimore with a population of 733,826 has 35,565 unemployed."

The total number of unemployed in Missouri is placed by Fader at $7,925. The total number of persons employed in industry in Missouri in January, 1920, was 275,940, while the total number in January, 1921, is 185,315. The present status of employment in Missouri, by industry, considering employment in January, 1920, is as follows:

Food products, 80.2 per cent; building trades, 39.5 per cent; textiles, clothing, 74.7 per cent; leather products, books, betterment of optimism.

There has been no decrease in the number of unemployed, Fader asserted there was an undercurrent of optimism. In St. Louis Fader made a canvass of the leading manufacturing plants of the city and asked each manufacturer the question, "Have you reached the peak of unemployment?" Forty-five per cent replied "yes," while 22 per cent said "no" and 33 per cent were uncertain.

$14,000 ROBBERY AT COURTHOUSE IN MARION, OHIO

Treasurer, at Work Early, Is Slugged by Two Men—More Than $50,000 in Locked Vault.

MARION, O., Jan. 26.—Two robbers early today entered the office of the County Treasurer in the courthouse here, knocked Treasurer Harry E. Fory unconscious with a revolver and escaped in an automobile.

Fory arrived at his office early to arrange for the handling of last-minute tax payments. He had opened the big office vault, obtained currency for change, and had just closed and locked the vault when the robbers entered.

The two robbers crept up on him and knocked him unconscious. They grabbed the $14,000 in cash and escaped in an automobile.

The vault contained between $50,000 and $75,000 in tax money, which the robbers did not get.

ing, saddlery, 65.9; automobiles and accessories, 75.2; per cent in food products and furniture, 55 per cent; clay, glass, cement and chemicals, 75.9 per cent.

Missouri Flour Mills. "In Missouri in the flour-milling industry 90 per cent are employed 60 per cent of the time," Fader said. "Coal mining is about 92 per cent normal, although conditions indicate that there will be a decrease in production unless demand increases."

Food products show a uniform decrease in employment throughout the state. Confectionery plants show the greatest decrease in production in the cheaper grades of products. Packing plants, handling only pork products, show a slight increase in employment.

In the St. Louis survey district, Kansas showed the smallest percentage of unemployment, Fader said. There is much construction work and road building going on in Kansas, and although figures show that approximately 22,000 persons had been released in manufacturing and industry, the actual unemployment is estimated at 12,000, he said.

The total number of unemployed in Kansas City is 20,640, and Kansas City, Kan., has 8500 unemployed. The total number of unemployed in the principal industrial cities of the St. Louis district, which comprises Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota, was given by Director Fader at 187,187.

Touching decreased production in comparison with the number of unemployed, Fader declared that the percentage of decrease in production in the last few months was even greater than the percentage of unemployment.

Many Plants Working Part Time. "In making the survey no person was counted as unemployed who was working part time," Fader explained. "Many of the plants are working only a few days a week, in addition to hundreds that have closed down altogether. Consequently, production has decreased to a greater degree than our figures show."

In explaining the large number of unemployed persons in St. Louis and the high percentage in proportion to some other cities, Fader said that it must be remembered that St. Louis is recognized as one of the greatest industrial centers of the country.

"When business depression occurs there always is a great number of floating laborers who go to the larger industrial centers, and St. Louis has received its share of them," he said. "My estimate is that more than 10,000 of these floating laborers have drifted to St. Louis, either because of the business depression, or because of a regular habit of going to the larger cities for the winter months."

Undercurrent of Optimism. Although in the last few weeks there has been no decrease in the number of unemployed, Fader asserted there was an undercurrent of optimism. In St. Louis Fader made a canvass of the leading manufacturing plants of the city and asked each manufacturer the question, "Have you reached the peak of unemployment?"

"Yes," while 22 per cent said "no" and 33 per cent were uncertain. "From thorough investigation," said Fader, "it is my opinion that the situation will be greatly improved within 90 days. I believe about reached the peak of depression, and the survey now on conditions will gradually change for the better."

The data and information was collected from the most authoritative sources. State labor departments, state commissioners of manufacturers, employers, state and municipal employment bureaus, employers' and employees' organizations contributed information, and questionnaires were sent to all industrial concerns. The information gathered from these various groups was checked through conferences with banking officials, associated charitable institutions and Red Cross agencies.

Fader said every care was exercised to minimize error. Announcement was made by Fader that the Department of Labor would make the survey permanent, and that monthly bulletins would be issued.

BUILDING MATERIAL EXTRA PRECAUTION IN DUBLIN DURING TRIAL OF 3 MEN

Street Entrances Closed and Strong Guard Maintained Everywhere While Court-martial Proceeds.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 26.—An inquiry by every State Legislature into building material prices is asked for in resolutions introduced at the convention of the Associated Contractors of America, here today, by R. L. Rhinehardt, vice president and secretary of the Westlake Construction Co. of St. Louis, Mo.

Rhinehardt and the contractors who are backing his resolution charge that manufacturers of building material are in a conspiracy to maintain building material prices at an unjustifiable level. Legislatures in 37 states are asked by Rhinehardt's resolution to conduct sweeping and full investigations into the prices asked by building material manufacturers doing business in their states, and to punish those guilty of conspiring to keep prices up, if any should be found.

"While we have no proof, we are morally certain that manufacturers of building material have combined to keep prices up," said Rhinehardt. "We know what prices were, and we know what they are. And we have a pretty good idea of what the cost of production is and therefore what prices ought to be. We do know that prices being asked today by manufacturers of building material are unjustifiably high and that because of this building activity is speeded up, these prices must come down."

"Do you believe that the falling off in construction work is directly due to the high prices of material?" Rhinehardt was asked. "There is no doubt of it, in my opinion," he replied. "I travel in the Southwest and the South for the Westlake Construction Co., and I am in direct touch with construction work. I know that many contemplated buildings have been abandoned because of the high prices being asked."

Inquiry by Every State Urged. "Are prices in St. Louis any higher than they are anywhere else?" he was asked. "No," he replied. "They are just as high there as anywhere else, but I do not believe higher. The fault is not with the retailer, but with the manufacturer of building material. As I said, we have no direct proof, but we are morally certain that they are acting in concert to keep these prices up. What we propose to do is to have a law enacted which will probe all over the country, wherever our association has local affiliation. We want the state legislatures to call for a law which will require manufacturers of building material to ascertain the cost of production and punish those, if possible, who are asking unreasonable prices. The Department of Justice will also be asked to take a hand in these investigations. Prices are sure to come down if these investigations get under way soon enough, and building activity is going to increase."

Rhinehardt excepted the lumber industry in his discussion of the manufacturers who are operating to maintain the high cost of material. He said that prices in lumber were understood. Rhinehardt explained that "the strength of the building material men lies in the fact that there are only a limited number of them. They have a perfect organization and are able to co-operate in keeping prices up."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The State Department refused yesterday to reverse its position in the case of Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, when appealed to by a committee representing the American Commission for the Independence of Ireland, of New Jersey. TWO INTRUDERS IN SALOON
FIGHT WITH POLICEMEN

Found Crouching in Corners After Door Is Discovered Open; They Are Subdued With Blows.

A rear door of the saloon of Steve Stavropoulos, 361 Market street, was found broken open by Sgt. Primm and two patrolmen at 5:30 o'clock this morning, and an investigation disclosed two men crouching in corners of the basement. They refused to surrender and a fight ensued in which their skulls were injured by the butt ends of police revolvers.

At the City Hospital, where it was necessary to take them for resisting police authority, they gave their names as Fred Barton, 18 years old, and Edward Harris, 34, of 617 Market street. Barton had a revolver, 37 pennies, three dimes, a watch and some metal slugs for use in place of bullets in mechanical pistols, and Harris had a revolver, a watch and $10.50. Stavropoulos identified the revolvers, watches and slugs as his property. The cash register had been broken open. Barton said he had been a pony driver in Ringling Brothers' Circus, and Harris a bear tender for Barnum & Bailey.

Man Kills Father and Brother.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 10.—Ira Hornocker, a former inmate of the Central Hospital for the Insane, last night shot and killed his father, Dennis Hornocker, and his younger brother, Everett, in their home here. The shooting was done with a single-barreled shotgun and the murderer is said to have coolly reloaded after discharging the weapon at close range almost in his brother's face and directed the next charge at his father. A quarrel over a dog is said to have precipitated the shooting.

Items of Interest

Grand Opera

OH, a Victor Record "Calisto Aida" is the one you'll be sure to like, for Calisto is your favorite. And this selection from Verdi's wonderful opera adds the magnificent singer at his best. Radames, youthful warrior, has but one ambition—that he may be chosen to command the expedition against Ethiopia, and subsequently lay his victory and his fame at the feet of Aida, the heavenly. No wonder that this passion song, originally in the palace of the King of Memphis, is known as the "Song of Triumph."

Victrola Shop—Sixth Floor.

Baby Makes His Bow

OF course "His Little Highness" has held the front of the stage ever since he made his first appearance, so far as his family is concerned. But his Christening Day is his first public appearance, and a very conspicuous event it is apt to prove. Hence mothers are buying lovely hand-made, hand-trimmed and hand-embroidered Christening Robes at the big February Sale of Infants' Wear. "The" Baby would look charming in one of them, and certainly nothing could be daintier.

Baby Shop—Third Floor.

Umbrellas to Mend!

UMBRELLAS to mend! Any one have old Umbrellas to mend? It's a good time to take out that old Umbrella you have always liked so well, because the handle is your hand, and bring it to the Umbrella Shop for repair. Prices for recovering have dropped from 25% to 33 1/2% lower than formerly, in any material from inexpensive cotton to the finest grade silk.

Those Youthful Dutch Necks

—so becoming to most girls, are wonderfully popular this season, especially on the simple little Blouses worn with the new Spring suit models. One in white or beige crepe de chine, with soft varied front, and a plain Dutch collar with black ribbon tie, vie for favor with the longer-collared Blouses with tiny platings as the only ornament; but both of them at an unusually low price—right now only $1.95

Alike Tables—First Floor.

Men! Don't Read This

—unless you want to hear about an unusual bargain for your own use. "They say" that leather has fallen amazingly in price at any rate. Leather Belts at Vandervoort's can be bought at a very low price, indeed. Really, it seems too good to be true, as you men who need a new Leather Belt, or who will need one in the near future, had better take advantage of this sale, when they can be had for 35c, or two for 75c

"It's Easy to Save"

It is not! While we do what we can to simplify the act of depositing your savings, we cannot make it "easy for you to save." The impulse to save must be developed into a determination to save, and the start and strength to carry on is up to you and you alone. We encourage, remind, and provide a safe place—you must do the rest. However, it will be easier for you to save if you will analyze the lives of some who should have saved—but didn't.

BOY, 15, ADMITS $1000 THEFT FROM TRUST COMPANY

Marion E. Lafferty, Employee of the Mercantile, Traced After Opening Bank Account.

Marion E. Lafferty, 15 years old, of 5030 Delmar boulevard, a clerk in the transit department of the Mercantile Trust Co., was held today in the House of Detention, having been turned over to a probation officer of the Juvenile Court yesterday by officials of the trust company, who said he had admitted the theft of $1000 from the bank. A registered mail package containing $1000 in currency was received by the trust company Dec. 24 from the Farmers State Bank of New Athens, Ill. It was placed in a temporary box until after Christmas, and on Dec. 27 it was transferred to the transit department for accounting and record. While in that department the package disappeared. Any one of a dozen employees might have handled it. It was said at the time. The transit department's receipt for the money disappeared also. This loss was made public at the time. Inquiry was made as to some of the employees of the department, and it was learned that young Lafferty had opened an account in the Boatmen's Bank, and had deposited $500 there. When he was first questioned, he is said to have denied having any outside resources. When the account at the Boatmen's Bank was mentioned he is said to have confessed the theft. From his bank account at the Boatmen's, $261.50 was recovered. He said the rest had gone to pay for clothing and other purchases, and to meet back bills. He said that, on the day when the package was received in the department, he took it and concealed it until lunch time, and then opened it and deposited $500 in the Boatmen's Bank. The other $500, he said, was used for purchases and to pay off debts.

Lafferty entered the employ of the Mercantile early in December. He had previously worked for the Federal Reserve Bank for nearly two years. When he left the Federal Reserve Bank, he took references and went to New York, intending to remain there, but he returned to St. Louis after a few weeks, and got employment with the Mercantile on his references. His parents are traveling representatives of a photographic concern, and he was boarding at the Delmar boulevard house. He represented himself to his employers as 18 years old, and he is tall enough to be of that age. He now says his sixteenth birthday will be in May.

CORRECTION DATE OF DEATH

Salesman Died Four Months After Getting Cider in Eye.

In an article in yesterday's Post-Dispatch it was inadvertently stated that Albert H. Wheeler, a traveling salesman, died on the same day he met with an accident, which it was alleged by his widow, Mrs. Naomia Wheeler, 5227 Pershing avenue, had caused his death. The fact was that while Wheeler was a passenger on a Rock Island train in Kansas, on July 4, 1919, a cider became imbedded in his left eye, and his death didn't take place until four months later. Mrs. Wheeler, in a suit on an accident insurance policy for $18,000 carried by her husband, alleged that the cider had caused a blood clot to form in his eye, resulting in his death. The insurance company asserted that he died from hardening of the arteries. Circuit Judge Kline took the case from the jury on the ground that there was not enough evidence to connect Wheeler's death with the cider getting in his eye.

RULING AS TO $50,000
TRUST FUND INTEREST

Attorney-General Barrett Holds
It Should Go With the Principal.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 26.—Attorney-General Barrett yesterday rendered an opinion to Gov. Hyde, in reply to a request of the Governor, as to the disposition of the interest accruing annually on a trust fund of about $50,000, to be received by Hyde April 1 from former Gov. Gardner.

This fund is the remnant of $198,- 000 which was appropiated to the State of Missouri by the United States Court of Claims, during the Hadley administration, to pay the Missourians who served in the Spanish-American War, for the period between their enlistment in the National Guard and the time they took the Federal oath. At the end of Hadley's term about $55,000 was left, for which the veterans to whom it was due had failed to apply. The amount has since been reduced by about $5000.

Barrett's advice to the Governor, as to the disposition of the interest on this fund, is:

"Until some competent authority otherwise provides, my opinion is that the income from the fund, over and above the necessary expenses, should go with the principal and accrue to the benefit of the real owners of the fund." He added that any expenses which might be incurred in administering the fund should be taken from the fund's income.

Barrett's opinion is contrary to the opinion given by his two predecessors in office, John T. Barker, who served under Gov. Major's administration, and Frank W. McAlister, who served under Gov. Gardner's administration. They both held that the Governor was entitled to retain the interest, which, even at 2 per cent, would exceed $1200 a year.
Gov. Hyde was informed that Gardner and Major had retained the interest, and he submitted the question to Barrett, to obtain a ruling for his own guidance.

CONFESSES MAKING UP STORY
OF LOSS OF $110 IN HOLDUP
Kroger Store Manager Held After Admitting to Police He Spent Part of the Money in a Cabaret.

Edward Hooley, 37, of 1419 Glasgow avenue, manager of a Kroger grocery at 2324 Cass avenue, was locked up at the Dayton Street Station last night after he had confessed to the police having made up a story of being held up and robbed of $110 of the company's money, in order to cover his losses spent in a cabaret with two women acquaintances. He said he spent $81 in the cafe and turned $29 over to the police, the remainder of the $110.

Hooley called a policeman into the store at noon yesterday and said he wanted to report the "robbery." He said he was on his way home at 7 p.
m. Monday when on Glasgow avenue, between Cass and Sheridan avenues, two men, wearing masks and armed, had stopped him and had taken a package containing the $110 from his overcoat pocket and $1.60 of his own money from his trouser pocket.
He was held pending action by the Kroger officials.

MAPLEWOOD VOTERS APPROVE
$40,000 SEWER BOND ISSUE
Propositions for New City Hall and Electric Lights on Thoroughfares Defeated.

Maplewood voters at a special election yesterday authorized the issuance of $40,000 bonds for the construction of a sewer system in the western portion of the suburb, where there are now no sewers. A proposition for $25,000 bonds for a new city hall and fire department building was defeated, as was one for $12,000 bonds for the erection of 240 electric lights on main thoroughfares.

A total of 1009 ballots were cast, about half of them by women. The vote for the sewer bonds was 722 to 287, while the city hall item was defeated by a vote of 585 to 425 and the lights item by 509 to 497. The electorate of Maplewood is more than 2000.

The sewer bonds will be prepared and advertised for sale very soon.
City Attorney Jones said. The other items cannot be brought up again at a special election for a year, but are expected to be included in the general city election in April.

Robert L. Kayser of Dairy Co. Says Losses on All Milk Credited to Homes.

The chief witness last before the Committee on the part of the Board of Health which is investigating the fairness of price of milk was Robert L. Kayser, general manager of the St. Louis Dairy Co., which he denoted as largest distributor of milk in the city. The chief points of testimony were:

1. The St. Louis Dairy Co. does not know whether or not milk comes from tuberculosis-infected cows, but it is a provision in any contract that no milk except from lin tested cows should be sold. The St. Louis Dairy Co. would destroy whole herds of cows if they were found to be infected. The chief points of testimony were:

2. That the St. Louis Dairy Co. in December lost 74-100 cent per gallon on all milk at retail to households.

3. That a sufficient number of cows should be milked to yield the profit on its investment.

4. Denial that any cow is diseased or infected, or that the St. Louis Dairy Co. is which the retail price is.

Testimony Causes
Kayser's testimony is acceptable at the hearing of the dairymen and milk distributors, who are accustomed to Federal and State authorities that the sale of milk is a business.

"What would you Board of Aldermen show in a new milk ordinance of the sale of milk not tuberculosis tested?"

Alice of the Board asked.

"I would say that it is a business," Kayser replied.

"Oh, no, only certain herds," Kayser replied. "The milk is not necessarily from diseased cows, but it is from the tuberculosis tests." Kayser asked.

"Not necessarily," Kayser replied. "There is a tuberculosis test all through the State."

This gives rise to the more cows are tuberculosis tested. Such cows slaughtered after the tuberculosis test. If all the cows are tested, the slaughter so extensive as to cause of the milk supply.

"Are the cows from receive milk tested for tuberculosis?" Kayser asked.

All Herds Not Tested, Kayser replied. "The milk is not necessarily from diseased cows, but it is from the tuberculosis tests." Kayser asked.

ALDERMEN HEAR DAIRY MANAGER IN MILK INQUIRY

Jordan said to the Post-Dispatch today that the Illinois and Missouri laws did not provide compulsory tuberculosis tests but that the city ordinance provided a compulsory tuberculosis test for dairy cows.

Testimony as to Costs.
The St. Louis Dairy Co. distributes between 7000 and 8000 gallons of milk daily by 75 retail wagons, Kayser said. He submitted figures which he testified were from the books of his company, showing that in December the cost of milk to the distributor was 20.16 cents a gallon at Union Station, that the cost of handling and delivery from Union Station to the doorstep was 31.78 cents a gallon and that the loss in milk between purchase and arrival at the doorstep added 2.75 cents per gallon, making the total cost 54.69 cents. He declared that the price of 16 cents a quart, at which milk was sold in December, yielded 62.85 cents a gallon, so that the company lost 74.190 of a cent on each gallon of milk during the month. He declared also that during the "summer" beginning on April 1, 1930, and ending Sept. 30, his company sold milk at retail at the same loss as the retail milk during the month. He declared that the profit of the company came from wholesale milk, ice cream and other by-products. When asked concerning the total of this profit, Kayser replied that he did not care to state that in the presence of competitors.

Danes said that he would not insist on such a statement and Kayser said that he would show to the committee privately the company's income tax statement for last year. At adjournment of the hearing the committee determined to employ a certified accountant familiar with the milk business to make an examination of the St. Louis company's and other companies' books.

Effect of Ordinance.

"If the city of St. Louis should pass an ordinance requiring the pasteurization of all milk sold in the city, it would reduce the number of distributors now handling milk here, would it not?" Aloe asked.

"It would, I think," Kayser replied. Kayser had previously testified that he believed all milk should be pasteurized.

Aloe told him that three months after the passage of such an ordinance in Detroit, the number of distributors was reduced from 158 to 45. "If the retail price is increased by the number of distributors in the field who overlap in routes," Aloe asked, "and if it were possible to zone the city and allocate the zones among the distributors, would the cost of handling milk be reduced?"

"I don't know that that has ever been made effective," Kayser replied. Under pressure of questions Kayser finally said: "If it could be done, it might be all right or might not."

Breakage Large Item.

Breakage and loss of bottles is another large item of cost in the distribution of milk, Kayser testified that the life of a bottle was about 12 trips. Aloe suggested that it might be proper to compel the customer to pay for the bottles. Kayser replied that a charge for bottles would be acceptable to the dairies, but that no feasible plan for charging had ever been devised. He said that a charge for bottles would necessitate the driver receiving each customer, an impractical thing, especially in the summer months when the milk is delivered from 1 to 5 a. m.

Kayser said he could not explain figures which Aloe said were from Federal reports showing that the margin demanded in St. Louis above the price paid the producer was greater than in any of the 37 cities of the United States, except one.

Aloe showed that the dairies were paying the producer $3.75 per 100 pounds for milk last August and selling for 16 cents and that the January price to the producer was $2.75, yet the retail price remained at 16 cents.

Price Differences Explained.

Kayser explained the failure of the retail price to follow the producers' price downward by saying: "Milk wasn't high enough at retail last summer. That's the answer."

"You say that a large distributor ought to handle milk more cheaply per gallon than a small distributor," Danes said. "How do you account for the fact that the little fellows undersell you?"

"Their milk is not so good," Kayser replied. "Our milk tests 2.5 per cent butter fat. Theirs barely complies with the ordinance requirement of 3 per cent."

City Chemist Buckland said that the average of the "little fellows" milk was as high in butterfat as the large distributor's milk.

E. F. Hageman, secretary of the St. Louis Dairy Co., testified that he prepared the cost figures testified to by Kayser, and that they were accurate. He said that the overhead and general charges were allocated properly to ice cream and by-products as well as to retail milk. He said that his books showed that the company lost money each month last year on retail milk, and that the loss figures did not include any depreciation charge. The investigating committee again is visiting dairies and plants for the distribution of milk today.

Auchterlonie is a member of a famous Scottish family of golfers and a cablegram from the Auchterlonie family, yesterday, stating that Alex Auchterlonie had accepted an offer as club professional at the local club. Letters to follow will inform the club officers when the new "pro" will arrive to take up his duties.

The new professional succeeds Joe Matthews, who will return to Kansas City, where he came two seasons ago. Matthews was a favorite at the Webster Club, but the combination of an excellent offer and the fact that Kansas City is his home was too great for him to turn down.

Five Handicap U. S. Limit.
A new ruling of the United States Golf Association provides that five will be the limit U. S. G. A. handicap to allow a player to compete in the national amateur tournament to be held at the St. Louis Country Club next summer. Hereafter a six-stroke handicap would serve as admission. The change is due to the fact that the entry list has been swelling to such an extent in recent seasons.

In order to receive a handicap, a player must give his three best scores played over his own club course, attested by a marker, to the secretary of his club. The club secretary will send all such scores to the secretary of the sectional association (the Missouri U. S. G. A. as regards St. Louis), who will make nominations to the U. S. G. A.

The U. S. G. A. computes handicaps on the Calkins system, a calculated average of a player's scores on a comparison between the player's average score and par for the course over a period of 10 rounds. If a player had an average in these three games of 75 over a 68 par course, his handicap would be 75 minus 68, or 7.

Local Clubs Must Join.

It will be necessary for a number of the local clubs to join the United States G. A. if their players are to qualify for the title next summer. Only five of the organizations have membership, these being Algonquin, Country Club, Glen Echo, Normandie and Forest Park.

Word has been received at the Normandie Golf Club from Will Pierman, the professional, who went to Scotland at the close of the last link season. Pierman's return was uncertain when he departed, but his latest communication states that he will be ready for the first cropping of the green.

LEACOCKS BEAT KENRICK IN MUNICIPAL FEATURE

A basketball doubleheader will be held at Francis Gymnasium, Washington University, tonight. The Webster and Yeaman High Schools will meet in the first game at 8 o'clock; while Washington U. and the Espilon Elms play the second contest. This will be the third meeting between these two fives, each having gained a victory.

Kenrick Meets Western.

The Kenrick High School five will have some stiff opposition when it entertains the Western Military Academy team of Upper Allen on its court, at 4 p. m., tomorrow. Chalmers have an unusually strong team and are anxious to even the score of last year's double victory gained over them by Kenrick.

Campaign to Force Hoppe Into Match With Horemans Under Way

Controlled Publicity Emanating From New York Indicates De-thronement of Cue Champion Would Be Welcomed by Industrial Concern—Little Chance of Match This Winter.

By John E. Gray.

WILLIE HOPPE, with his back against the wall, seems to be battling an octopus, the Organized Billiard world and all its tentacles. His cue is his only weapon and his sole support is his faithful armor bearer and wind-jammer, R. B. Benjamin. We are backing Willie because, when it comes to a storm, the aforesaid Benny can put on a blow all his own.

In Monday's Post-Dispatch appeared evidence of the campaign now being conducted to boost Horemans and deny Hoppe. "Gray" Tom Gallagher, who has been aligned with the Billiard octopus in various capacities in times past, is quoted as saying, on the strength of a practice game he did not view, that Edouard the Belgian is the "greatest player in the world." Albert Cutler and other players who are intimate with the billiard implements manufacturing company that undertakes to control the professional game and dictate all title and exhibition matches, are also extolling Horemans. The Belgian himself is under the direction of Shepard Barclay of St. Louis, who runs a billiard magazine under the auspices of the octopus and in its interest. The whole support of the Belgian saviors of Industrially Organized Billiards.

Campaign of Propaganda Is On.

MUCH hectic publicity is being sent out by the company's agents and publicity henchmen and some of the literature leads one to believe that Hoppe must be fleeing in terror from the new crusade.

The fact of the matter is that the billiard octopus would be very glad to see Hoppe beaten because the champion, under Benjamin's management, has made himself independent of the domination of the manufacturing company, has defied it and is liable at any time to carry his honors and his name to the independent table and rail manufacturers to boost their game. He is a flaming sword in perpetual threat against the billiard business, as represented by the billiard company, as long as he is "uncontrolled." Their interest is commercial and their support of Horemans seemingly is a mere industrial offensive.

Better Than Hoppe's U. S. Rivals.

THE octopus tried vainly to build up an American cueist able to break Hoppe. Welker Cochran and Young Jake Schaefer were encouraged to every way to develop. But although they made wonderful runs in practice and occasionally in competition, neither has shown the quality to beat Hoppe.

Horemans was therefore well-combated with open arms. He seems to be equal to or above the class of Young Jake Schaefer or Cochran. His good playing, however, has all been done in exhibition matches where there is no mental strain and no "safety" to face. When he enters the match with Hoppe next fall, as he no doubt will if he can finance himself with a side bet, he will have to have other qualities than mere technique.

Hoppe Greatest of All.

THE fact of the matter is that Hoppe is still the wonder of all time in billiards, as so often has been said. There are no other players who think of Jake Schaefer and Frank Ives were his equals; but there isn't even an argument. Hoppe has broken many records for short or sustained billiards play, both 15.1 and 18.2, in competition, since the anchor spot was barred.

DEMPSEY-BRENNAN FIGHT PICTURES TO BE SHOWN IN MILWAUKEE NEXT WEEK

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 26.—Motion pictures of the Dempsey-Brennan championship fight recently held at New York are on their way to Milwaukee and will be shown next week as a test of the Federal law prohibiting transportation of prize fight films in interstate commerce. Ray Cannon, attorney for Dempsey, announced last night.

The pictures are not to be shown for profit, Cannon said, and Federal officials are invited to arrest the exhibitors, he added.

Freddie Jacks on Hand for Go With Kid Bandy Friday

Husky Briton Is Expected to Work Out at Local Gymnasium This Afternoon.

Fred Jacks, a husky-looking featherweight boxer of Jewish origin, English birth and international experience, one of that seemingly endless string of claimants to Lonsdale Belt honors, is with us today, in advance of his fight at the Coleman Friday night with Kid Bandy. Local fans will look him over in his workout this afternoon at the Business Men's gymnasium.

Horemans Can Obtain Any Sum Necessary to Cover Hoppe's Side-Bet

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—There seems little chance of Horemans and Hoppe meeting for the billiard championship this winter. Horemans cannot remain here after the end of April or the early part of May, and Hoppe refuses to meet him within that time limit.

J. F. L. Derks of Holland, who came with Horemans as interpreter and secretary, tried to pin Benjamin, Hoppe's manager, down to immediate terms a week ago last Thursday. Horemans wanted a match at 2000 points, 18.1, or 2000 points, 18.2 ball-line, but Benjamin declared the champion would play only 1000 points. Derks finally consented to this, whereupon Benjamin declared Hoppe could not play any match at this time, as he was booked for exhibitions up to next May. Benjamin thereupon drew down all deposits and took a train for the West, and it was thought the matter was disposed of until Benjamin made his claim in St. Louis that Horemans had failed to close a match when he had an opportunity.

The news that Benjamin is coming back to New York has revived hope that a match may be made on the theory that when he finds how strong the feeling is here that Hoppe is the better player, he will step a hard match it may require one week of exhibition play. There is no doubt that Horemans can get backing for any amount Hoppe sees fit to name.

Where Ives and Schaefer were considered the marvels of their day when they averaged 25 for 2000 points, Hoppe is said to have averaged 35 for 6000 points and an even better description. Championship matches were won with averages of from 15 to 21, where Hoppe is considered out of form if he doesn't average far above 20. In his last tournament, played under conditions that would break a billiardist's heart and with balls so bad that they had to be changed in the middle of a match because of a crack that was spreading with each shot, Willie averaged about 27.

Horemans Second Best?

BUT, although he may not yet be the greatest player in the world, or Hoppe's equal even, it is evident that the Belgian is the best available opposition for the champion and that they must meet within a few months.

The only misfortune is that he has to come in under auspices which seem to make him a mere tool to aid a commercial objective. If Horemans falls when he opposes the champion, it will be a dull outlook for the title. The only timber in the field today, outside of the Belgian, appears to be young Jake Schaefer, now touring the Middle West with Cochran. It is possible that Horemans and Cochran or Schaefer will appear in matches at Detroit this winter. If they do it may shed further light on the Belgian's ability. Young Jake Schaefer is likely to prove dangerous. He recently made a run of 394—in exhibition.

Martin Yields to Commission.

Commission "form of government" made A. E. F. champion Bob Martin bow low. Martin had told New Orleans promoters that a Madison Square Garden match with Billy Burke in February would prevent his carrying out a previously arranged contest with Martin Burke at New Orleans, Jan. 31. The New Orleans Commission wired the New York Commission the facts and asked that Martin be forced to hold to his prior match with Burke.

Yesterday Martin wired the New Orleans Commission that he had changed his mind and would meet Burke as scheduled.

The boxing situation can easily be controlled. Since the new boxing laws will work in harmony and support one another's rulings.

Pastime Date Changed.

Sam Dixon will hold his all-black boxing show on Thursday night instead of Friday, this week, to avoid a conflict with the Coliseum matches. The Dixon card follows: Buddie Davis, Indianapolis, vs. Young Sanders, Memphis, eight rounds at 135 pounds.

Rock Bones, Memphis, vs. Speedy Moulding, Kansas City, eight rounds at 135 pounds.

Battling Neal, Philadelphia, eight rounds at 122 pounds.

Tommy Coleman, St. Louis, vs. Young Hadley of Springfield, Ill., eight rounds at 122 pounds.

STEIN WANTS TO MEET WINDY CITY BOWLERS

Otto Stein Jr. and William Hamann will meet on the Washington alleys this afternoon, 2.30 o'clock, in a 21 ball match, best five out of nine games. Hamann is a strong bowler and should give Stein a real match.

The latter has issued a challenge to Frank Martin or Bonnie de Vito to bowl a 40-game total pin match for a purse of $300. The first 20 games are to be bowled in Chicago and the second 20 in St. Louis, the match being held at the close of the St. Louis scratch championship.

Dundee Stops Walker.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 26.—Mike Dundee, a technical knockout over Al Walker of San Francisco last night in a scheduled 12-round bout when the referee stopped the bout in the middle of the eighth round after Walker had been felled for the count of nine.

Walker had been floored for the count of nine. From the second round to the end Dundee led all the way. The men are featherweights.

Missouri Basket Five Ambitious to Win U. S. Laurels

Tigers Expect to Capture Both Valley and National Championships.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 26.—Each with a string of six victories tacked to their banners, the Missouri and Kansas basketball teams will clash here Friday and Saturday nights to decide which is to retain leadership of the Missouri Valley Conference title race. They are the only teams maintaining perfect scores in the first three weeks of Valley contest, except Nebraska, which, because of the fact the Huskers do not meet Missouri, Kansas and the Kansas Aggies, is not considered a contender for the championship.

Until the two close games between Ames and the Aggies, last week-end, the Missouri coaches were expecting the race to be a three-cornered affair between the Tigers, the Jayhawkers and the Aggies. But since the Ames Cyclones proved so much a match for the Aggies, it seems certain that neither Kansas nor Missouri should find it difficult to triumph over the Manhattan five, and that the generation-old war between the Missourians and the Kansas seems fair to settle the title race.

The Tigers so far have shown an ability at handling the ball and at hitting the basket that has been entirely too much for any team they have met.

Tigers Seek U. S. Title.

Encouraged by the success their team has achieved in the opening weeks of the season, Tiger fans are already looking beyond the Missouri Valley championship and demanding a national championship. With the national amateur championship tournament scheduled in Kansas City next March, and with the fastest team that Missouri has ever put on the floor, they believe that the opportunity to add to the national title that have already been brought to the school by Bob Simpson and Brutus Hamilton should not be overlooked.

But there is a hindrance to Missouri's entering the national tournament—the Missouri Valley 18-game rule. The Tigers have 18 Valley games scheduled and these games will be played. But Missouri fans believe there should be little trouble in getting special dispensation from the State five to allow the Missouri State five to go after the national title.

Other Schools Have Ignored the Valley Limit in Basketball and Football in recent years merely to build a "schedule" and the opportunity to bring a national championship into the Valley would be too much to turn down for a technicality.

The Missouri athletic department has had nothing to say about the national tournament so far, and will probably not say anything until the question can be brought up and settled as to whether the extra games can be scheduled under the Valley rules.

American Boxers Defeat Canadians

Metropolitan Amateurs Score in Seven of Eight Bouts—Heming Only Canuck to Win.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Canadian amateur boxers did not follow closely on the footsteps of the English amateurs who made a clean sweep here a few nights ago, for five of the Canadians were knocked out in eight starts, when the Hemingway, who was the best of the metropolitan champions in Madison Square Garden last night. Two had decisions, rendered against them, and only Harry Jennings of the Broadway A. C. of Toronto saved an upset rout for Canada. He knocked out Milton Pound in two rounds in the 147-pound class.

In the main, the Canadians were outwitted, but they were not outboxed. As a rule the Canadians sparred better, but when it came to heavy hitting they did not muster up. Their heavyweight champion, Charles McQuibbin, was the only one who was not knocked out. He was knocked out by Gordon Munce, Charley was bounced off the floor in bewildering fashion until his seconds threw in a towel to save him.

Willard Says All He Wants Is Chance to Vindicate His Boxing Ability.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, made preliminary arrangements yesterday for his return bout with Jack Dempsey, scheduled to be fought here March 17.

Willard, who is accompanied by his manager, Ray Archer, stated that one of the first details to be settled is that regarding the site of his training camp and the engagement of sparring partners.

A number of camp quarters will be inspected early next week. The former title holder expects to go to Boston today or tomorrow on private business, and upon his return will devote his entire time to training.

According to Archer, it is proposed to select a quiet, isolated camp, where Willard can settle down for a six or seven week stretch of training.

A tentative list of sparring partners has been made up and from these four to six names will be selected to help condition Willard for his "comeback." According to Willard, these men will be picked for their fighting. Fast, hard hitting boxers who can give and take smashing blows will have the call.

A special trainer also will be named as well as a physician who will visit the quarters several times a week and inspect Willard for muscular or organic defects.

"No money or effort will be spared to get me into perfect condition for this bout," said Willard. "I have asked and received a chance to regain my title and I am going about it in a businesslike way. I have felt certain from the day I lost the championship that I could regain it if I ever faced Dempsey again."

"The financial terms and conditions do not interest me. I will have no percentage or other system Tex Rickard desires and I am quite content to let Dempsey have the major and of the purse as is his right as champion."

Ward on Retired List.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Contracts will be sent to all Brooklyn National League players before Feb. 1, except infielders James Catton and Charles Ward, the club management announced today. Catton and Ward asked to be placed on the "retired list," because of illness. They will report for duty when physically fit.

UNTERMYER ACTING IN GERMAN INTEREST.
PALMER CHARGES

Hays, Kaufman and Lindheim were the publicly admitted attorneys of the German Embassy. Untermyer was, in the opinion of the Embassy, at least, its controlling and chief counsel. When we realize that my office has recently prosecuted to conviction and sentence both Kaufman and Lindheim for violations of the law growing out of their activities as counsel for German interests, and that Mr. Lindheim is Mr. Untermyer's relative, according to his own sworn statement before the Overseas Committee.

Telegram of July 26, 1919.
"It is plain that conscientious resentment now moves him, although before this prosecution on July 26, 1919, more than four months after I had severed all connection with the Alien Property Custodian's office, he wired me:

"I have freely, openly, consistently admitted your fair judicial attitude in every transaction where I was concerned and will be glad in common justice to repeat that assertion at any place and time. Your office was conducted with exceptional ability. You selected best talent regardless of other considerations. No able, more devoted officials than Garvan and Bradley Palmer could anywhere be found. Money could not buy such service."

"He also fails to tell the public that his partner, Louis Marshall, has been and is the counsel for the Stoenhs in the Botany Worsted cases, and Richard Wagner in the Stuenne steamship cases, both involving over 20 millions of dollars, and both claimed by the Alien Property Custodian to be attempted fraudulent evasions of the trading with the enemy act. These two cases are the most important cases now pending before our courts in the whole field of the activities of the Alien Property Custodian.

"Mr. Untermyer is simply serving his old clients by attempting to discredit the war time work of capturing enemy property in the United States. With native confidence in the public forgetfulness, he professes to be doing it in the people's interest. It is really in the German interest."

INVESTIGATOR FINDS LITTLE TRACE OF
BOLSHEVISM IN L. W. W.

Does not mean that in the logging camps. It means direct action by the camp crew and not action according to the decision of the L. W. W. headquarters.

Fundamentally the L. W. W. members are democrats like the rest of us. They have no far political vision, and they wish to ameliorate the condition in life of working men, but they could be trusted in the final analysis not to follow any doctrinaire revolutionaries who had thought it all out for them and told them to come along. Lenin could do that with the Russian workers. But no one could do it with American workers. And the membership of the L. W. W., particularly in the woods, is largely American.

The L. W. W. has its ups and downs, and just now it is down. But it will not go out of existence and disappear because it stands for an idea, industrial unionism. There are other labor organizations, such as the Automobile Workers, which also stand for industrial unionism, but the L. W. W. has proclaimed it loudly, though it has perhaps done less effective organizing than some of the others.

Industrial unionism is essentially inimical to the craft unionism upon which the American Federation of Labor is built. The individual unions in the A. F. of L. could unite along industrial lines and some have, but the results have not been sufficiently striking to remove from the L. W. W. further excuse for existence.

There is nothing essentially revolutionary in industrial unionism, though the L. W. W. tries to make it so, concluding its well known preamble with the sentence: "By organizing industrially we are forming the structure of the new society within the shell of the old." But that is largely rhetoric. In the body of the preamble is written: "We find that the centering of the management of industries into fewer and fewer hands makes the trade unions unable to cope with the ever-growing power of the employing class." All industrial unionists are of this point of view.

MOTHERS! GET FREE JARS OF TURPO FOR CHILDREN'S COLDS
Local Druggists Giving Away 30c Jars of Turpo Free—the New Remedy for Cold Troubles.

Mothers with small children are especially invited to take advantage of this offer of free jars of Turpo—the Turpentine Ointment for the treatment of colds. Turpo is made of distilled Turpentine, Camphor and Menthol, in salve or ointment form. These old-fashioned remedies have long been known for their value in the treatment of colds, coughs, inflammation, congestion and similar ills.
Colds are best treated at the very beginning, because then they are prevented from developing into serious illness. The way to stop a cold, especially in children, is to apply Turpo to the nostrils at the first sign of sneezing or running nose. This clears the air passages, stops the discharge and aborts the cold at the very root.
Even if the cold has developed, Turpo will give immediate relief. Applied on the chest and neck, and rubbed in well, it penetrates under the surface, and relieves the inflammation, drives out the congestion, and has a soothing, healing effect.
Turpo is also of great value as an antiseptic application for cuts and wounds. It has many uses. Doctors and druggists recommend it. If you will present this coupon at your drug store you will receive a 30c jar of Turpo free as long as the supply lasts. Be sure and get your jar today.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The League or Big Navy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The recent election was ostensibly a solemn referendum on the League of Nations, but in reality it was a bitter and passionate condemnation of Wilsonism. People knew that a vote for Gov. Cox was an endorsement of President Wilson. So it seems that the league was largely lost in the hurricane of hatred and retaliation.

I am persuaded that the most forward looking as well as backward looking persons who have sobered up and calmed down since the political cyclone recognize the imperativeness of the League of Nations, or at least some sort of an association of nations to prevent war. I further believe that those still opposed to any league at all are few and far between. Such persons must concede that in the regular run of human events war will recur. Any nation that dispassionately and irrevocably refuses to join a concert of nations whose supreme aim is the preservation of peace should be sane, logical and consistent enough to endeavor to provide, regardless of exorbitant taxes, the foremost navy.

The construction and maintenance of a navy competing for supremacy in power and magnitude may cause even peace to be hell as well as war.

President-elect Harding, in the campaign, entertained alternating views with reference to the League of Nations, and so he would perhaps be pardoned and not charged with intentional inconsistency should he, following the meetings of many minds, champion the present functioning league. Supreme courts have more than once reversed their decisions, and so have governments with reference to tariff, immigration and other legislation.

Mr. Harding is evidently seeking more light concerning the League of Nations through conference with military men of diverse convictions on the subject, and does not consider his decisive election as conclusive manifestation of public sentiment.

Party honors were equal in declaring war and in waging it successfully, and partisan patriotism and glory would be equally divided in case America should join the league under Republican auspices. Mr. Harding and his possible decision of the league, materially reduce taxation through a cessation of naval construction and eventual disarmament, as well as prevent future wars.

Christian nations are rapidly building death-dealing devices and messengers of murder, while they pray for peace and advocate the brotherhood of man.

Great governments are engrossed in reconstruction of their respective navies for inevitable war unless an international police force is maintained or unless mutual and honest naval disarmament is consummated.

Warships are built for war, although they may be christened in love, peace and prayer. It would be poor business and foolishly inconsistent to burden the people with taxes to build the fleet and fastest navy and afterward join a league that provided for disarmament.

HERBERT S. KRAFT.

Taxes and Police Salaries.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Why give the police more salary, when everybody else's wages are being cut and slashed? The taxpayers will have to make it good. Taxes are of all reason for the workman's little home now. Do they want them to lose their homes? CONSTANT READER.

A Mad World.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The heroic capture of that female desperado who was keeping a candy store and was found with the deadly punch-board, and who is perhaps trying to support a family does seem a great moral victory. Nothing like moral uplift; and the gathering in of some wash boilers, a cell or two of pipe and a few gallons of home-made tincture, shows that the authorities are doing something. While the police when thus engaged are far away from more criminal scenes, the murderers and robbers who are daily becoming more bold are not worrying much about police interference. So now they no longer break a safe where it stands, but they remove it to a park and take their time. How long will it be until they come to a large safe, which in order to be moved would require a large opening to take out of the building? The police away raiding candy stores will not disturb them, so they will get blocks, timbers, jacks, etc., and move the building. And when in the near future more and more oppression is laid on the people a break army of Government agents must be appointed to arrest, detain and convict offenders who thus far have never perhaps been in a courtroom. Soon one-half, perhaps, of the population will be in the grasp of the Federal Government for the sole purpose of harassing the other half. Daily the Post-Dispatch splendidly details the manner, assailing the bunk that is called law.

HERBERT W. CANN.

A DANGEROUS EXPERIMENT.

The Gronna bill providing for the regulation of the packing industry, which has been adopted by the Senate and is scheduled for ratification through the House, is a doubtful, if not dangerous, experiment. The bill places the whole packing industry under the control of a livestock commission of three members, appointed by the President. The commissioners are to receive salaries of $10,000 a year and are invested with large powers of regulation. In short, the industry is not to be restrained by law, but is to be supervised by a governmental bureau.

Is not the measure a recognition of monopoly in the packing business and an admission of the futility of our anti-monopoly laws to check it and of democratic government under law to destroy monopoly? Is it not an admission of the helplessness of the Government to prevent monopoly in the food supply of the country and an acknowledgment that we must resort to bureaucratic control?

Can we afford to abandon the operation of laws against privilege and monopoly for the purpose of maintaining freedom of industry and trade and promoting private initiative for governmental control of private business? If we must have bureaucratic regulation of the packing industry, why not regulation of steel or oil or the building trades? Whether the policy, once adopted, leads? Does it not inevitably lead to governmental regulation of all business concerns which have reached a point where competition is menaced and in the end the inclusion of all business under bureaucratic regulation?

Where will the President find three men, at $10,000 salaries, capable of regulating the great packing business—where outside of the trained experts of the business?

If they should regulate foolishly instead of wisely, what will be the condition of the food supply? Has our experience in the interference and control of private business by governmental bureaus and commissions been so encouraging that we want the business of the country run by Federal bureaucrats? Think of the power over individual effort and energy and talent and the interests and activities of the people which will be concentrated in Washington! Who will be permitted to thrive and who will be destroyed?

In the end, which will control the commission—the great interests it is authorized to regulate, or the Government? Which will be on the job most persistently—the public or the private interest?

Monopoly is founded on privilege. We admit the propriety, under democratic government, of the control of public utilities, chartered for public service and vested with monopoly privileges. But business outside of public utilities depends upon individual initiative and energy and genius. Theoretically, it is without privilege and one concern should never be permitted to enjoy special advantages over any others. If we would go to fundamentals and see to it that no private business enjoys privileges or advantages in control of natural resources or artificial utilities, we would put an end to monopoly.

Senator Reed, voting for the bill under protest, as a desperate remedy for a bad situation, called it "state socialism." It is not state socialism. It is without the merits even of outright socialism, in which the state actually owns and controls all industrial and commercial activities for the public interest and welfare and has the call on the best trained talent. Governmental regulation of business is worse than state socialism. It is a half-baked socialism—a bureaucratic paternalism—in which the Government goes into partnership with private business, with the private interest served by the best expert talent striving to get the best of the partnership. Which partner is likely to control in the end? May we not be driven ultimately to state socialism as a relief from Government-controlled private interests entrenched in Washington for the purpose of control? This is the first step.

The problem of preventing monopolistic practices is difficult, but we do not believe the resources of law and rigid law enforcement have been exhausted. The bill is evidence of the bankruptcy of Congress in courage and intelligence.

The country seems to be drifting into a bureaucratic rectitude.

WHO IS A REPUBLICAN?

A good many of us have been worrying about Mr. Harding lately, harassed as he is said to have been in his Cabinet planning by the party placers, while here and there a matador stood ready to deliver the red finale. Well, such tears, if we shed any, were tears of supererogation. It seems that Mr. Harding has not even been annoyed, much less lacerated. To be sure, the men under consideration have been lauded and exalted by turns, but to that sort of thing—the bouquets and brickbats of politics—Mr. Harding is confessedly insured.

We are told, further, in the last messages of the Marion levitating, that the Cabinet will be all Republican. Those who expected an eclectic official family are reminded that the President-elect is a partisan, believes in party government and, in consequence, only those of unblemished party pedigree shall be named as counselors. This may be gall and wormwood to three or four million Democrats, but it's their own home-brew and let them drink it.

But are Mr. Harding's difficulties all removed with the announcement of a pan-Republican Cabinet? Who or what is a Republican? Where can we find a definition? It might be submitted, for example, that Boies Penrose is a congenial Republican, but his attitude of ill-concealed displeasure with the latest tariff measure distinctly smacks of heresy. And if a Pennsylvania statesman looks coldly upon a tariff maneuver, to what fond breast may the goddess of protection turn for assurance?

Consider Mr. Hoover. He says he is a Republican. But if one were to introduce Mr. Hoover as a Republican to Hiram Johnson, the findings, we suppose, would have to be reported by a Coroner's jury. And that venerable Massachusetts statesman, ex-Congressman-ex-Governor McCall, honored by and honoring his party. A Republican surely in the benevolent appraisal of Mr. Harding, but is McCall a Republican, say, in the ruddy drops that visit Henry Cabot Lodge's impulsive heart?

And there's the glumest Roman of them all—La Follette. A Republican, forsooth, but what a wailing and wailing of tongues if a portfolio were handed the Wisconsin Pompadour!

An all-Republican Cabinet may sound easy in conversation, but its construction calls for the wisdom of all the ages up to now.

COSTLY FOR CITY AND STATE.

St. Louis has long wanted home rule. Missouri as a whole has been unmoved by our pleading. The people of the State either have been indifferent or actively opposed to the city's request. They still are. How much the control of our Police Department at Jefferson City has cost the people of St. Louis nobody knows. But the cost has not been borne by the people of St. Louis alone. The people of Missouri pay a part of the cost.

The truth of that assertion is just now being demonstrated. The police of St. Louis have asked for a large increase in salaries. A bill for such increase has been introduced in the Legislature. The measure has powerful support. The city has got to fight this bill hard, to prevent its passage. It is reported that Mayor Kiel, Comptroller Nolte and President Alice of the Board of Aldermen, comprising the city's Board of Estimate and Apportionment, will go to Jefferson City next week to submit the city's side of the case to a joint committee of the House and Senate.

How does this affect the people of Missouri, so far as their pocketbook is concerned? The answer is plain. A strictly St. Louis question, or what ought to be such, is occupying the time and energy of the Legislature—time and energy that should be devoted to State issues of the very greatest importance to the people of Missouri.

Consider but three items in the present administration's program: The reorganization of the State's business management; the rehabilitation of our schools from a shame and reproach to an adequate educational system; the formulation of comprehensive plans for the competent expenditure of $60,000,000 in good roads that will lift Missouri out of the mud and keep her out.

The routine business of the State must have attention. The arduous work of drafting and passing appropriation bills must be done. Relief from oppressive taxes must be had. The Legislature has its hands full. Yet on top of all this a purely domestic St. Louis question is thrust upon the Legislature.

The vital interests of the State necessarily suffer. The consequence is that the people of Missouri have to pay a part of the bill rendered by the cumbersome, inefficient practice of operating the St. Louis police force from the capital.

It is to the financial and civic advantage of the people of Missouri, as well as to the people of this city, that St. Louis manage its own affairs. St. Louis home rule means better government for Missouri.

Gov. Hyde's announcement that St. Louis cannot get home rule with his permission, recalls the prophecy of the late Tom Kinney, who, speaking in the State Senate 10 years ago, said Ireland would get home rule before St. Louis. Erin seems to be leading now.

WHAT MOB LAW COSTS.

East St. Louis has found out that chickens come home to roost. East St. Louis had a race riot in 1917. Disorderly elements which officials had fawned upon ran amok and there was a reign of anarchy, arson and murder.

It was not long before the chickens began coming home to roost. They have been coming ever since, and unless East St. Louis exhibits greater efficiency in settling its accounts than it ever has, they will still be coming home after this generation shall have passed.

The chickens are in the form of judgments against the city for damage done by the mob. So far they total $337,856.47. The city has no money to pay them. There are $180,494.55 in other judgments which the city is unable to pay. Interest on all of them is being paid out of a special annual appropriation of $5,000.

A proposal is being urged to have a special bond issue to pay the judgments and clear a bonded indebtedness of $719,900. Law and order and efficient government pay.

Diamond dealers continue to exploit the increasing value of gems, but the smudge of egg remains the badge of opulence in Missouri.

"AW, COME ON DOWN, WON'T YOU?"

—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
by Clark McDanna

THE WORLD LAYS DOWN ITS ARMS.

WHY do the legions answer to the bugle calls? What gives the charm to Death on fields of warfare's strife? When frenzied nations try to arms, how Reason fails! And then, to Mars, the ghastly sacrifice of life.

How Man, well-graced with all the godlier powers of mind, Goes madly to the combat on the battle-line! His eyes were given to see, and yet, Alas! so blind.

He takes his dearest treasures to some Moloch shrine. Behind the guns there stands the stature of a Man;

From out the trench he hurls the poisoned darts of death. Beneath the sea, enraged, he works his direful plan.

And, sailing in the air, blows Hate from out his breath.

This soldier-man, who bears the image of his God,

With his breast can pulse a kindly, human heart.

Why, then, the beaten war-paths that his feet have trod?

Why doth he seek a field to play the warrior's part?

With genius to create, see what the man has wrought!

He makes the wilderness to grow the rose, and then,

The things wherewith to wreck and ruin—these are sought.

To make of all his work a wilderness again. Doth Progress seek its own in all these fields of blood?

Is it our warfare's path a race must upward go? From out the seeds of Hate—no human Brotherhood—

Nor else than this a God could ever make it so.

Into the Nations' eyes the War-God throws his dart.

And o'er the minds of men he casts Delusion's spell;

In frenzied combat, then, the battling legions thrust

Their forks of Death, alas! and turn this earth to hell.

Midst all the clash of arms, tho' still the night be dark,

Yet kindly Hope doth live to fire Man's heart.

There ever glows again Hope's never-dying spark.

And Dreamers, dreaming on, some day the dreams come true.

In all the terror-strife, yet still the Man is Man;

The warring fields of Death have no eternal charms.

And Nations rise, at last, to work a nobler plan—

Triumphantly, Peace survives; the world lays down its arms!

Sir: Can Socrates see how, failing a convoking international agreement to keep the peace, the European loans of a $100,000,000 corporation would be any safer than anyone's else? X. Y. Z.

Marble the Terrible Mr. Palmer Will Deport the Audacious Mr. Untermyer in the course of rounding out his career.

A: that, there are kinds of tobacco that we could very well give up.

Sir: It was about 3 o'clock. I was just about finished with the editorial page, when I heard some knocking.

I opened the door and saw a form that looked like a snow man. It started moving toward me and stammered out: "W-h-e-r-e-a-m-I?"

"You are outside," I said, "you better come in."

He came in. I helped him clean the snow off his clothes and gave him a hot cup of coffee.

When he warmed up a bit I asked him where he was bound for in a stormy night like this. "Oh," he says, "I bane going to 'Go to Hell Gulch.'"

"I stopped him right there and told him not to come around in my house. 'Excuse me, but that bane the name of the place where my family lies. It is near Deadwood.'"

"Yes," he continued, "I bane herding sheep near Two Top for a long while and got homesome. I have a wife and five children in 'Go to Hell Gulch' and never seen one of them."

"What," I asked him, "do I understand you to say that you had a wife and five children and you had never seen one of them?"

"Yes, that bane true," he tells me. "How can it be that you never saw one of them when you are only a comparatively short distance away from your home?"

"Why," he says, "one bane born after I was gone on the range." I admitted.

"That's different," I admitted. He suddenly picked up his bundle and made for the door. "I must be going," he says. I tried to hold him back. "You don't want to go to hell—I mean to the gulch—tonight, do you?"

"Yes, I must go. This month January bane fine weather, but tonight it's a son of a gun," and off he went. SAM H. BOBER.

Sir: Where a man is a friend of somebody I more often find the relationship set forth with an aptness by the hasty writers of the press than properly, without it. For example, John Schmolli is "a friend of Kiel's," whereas what is meant is that he is a friend of Kiel, and not of Kiel's friends, family or acquaintances.

An easy way for a writer to break himself of this misuse of the apostrophe, if he doesn't detect the error in the making, is to ask himself the question, "of (in this instance, Kiel's) what?" Two paragraphs:

The way the women are dressing now leaves nothing to the imagination save the ears. Making men's clothing pocketless by law fittingly follows after having made the pockets moneyless by law.

My dear "Just a Minute"—Under separate cover the writer is sending you a sign which was taken from the Interurban station at Carbondale, Ill. Many years before the dry spell struck you your section of the P.-D. has been my "night cap."

I get much pleasure from your department and always enjoy it, thus upon seeing this unusual sign nothing could keep me from scripping it from the wall upon which it hung. I leave it to you for comment. Sincerely,

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THE OUTLOOK IN MEXICO.

From World's Work.

ONE encouraging aspect of the international situation is the improved outlook in Mexico. So far as elections are at all possible in that organized and distracted country, the new President may be accepted as a constitutionally chosen head of the nation. In his inauguration the constitutional forms were at least observed. More important still, the Mexican republic seems to have a new order than at any time since Diaz; the many warring clans, so far as external symptoms are concerned, are more quiet; certainly the Mexican masses are wearied with insurrection and bandit government, and it is probably this weariness, more than anything else, which accounts for President Obregon's undisputed accession. Even if a friendlier popular feeling toward the United States does not prevail, at least the official attitude has become more rational. The new Mexican administration clearly desires American friendship and the co-operation of American statesmen and American financiers in the difficult tasks that await them. This co-operation should be freely granted. The only feeling American can properly cherish toward Mexico is one of friendship and sympathy. The highest hopes entertained toward our southern neighbor are the social functions, such as it was, of the official attitude has become more rational. Duplicates

THIS is the eleventh of a series of remarkable detective stories now running in the Post-Dispatch. The series describes some of the many events in the professional career of a private investigator, "The Twelfth," and last of the series will be published next Wednesday.

This description of Mr. T. Carrington, private detective for "Inquiry agent," as he preferred to call himself, appeared in a tale entitled "Simon," and is called from that work with its author's permission: "He was a young man, apparently a little over 30, above middle height, with a round, ingenuous, very agreeable face, smooth, fair hair, a little neatly trimmed mustache, and a monocle that lent just the necessary touch of distinction to what might otherwise have been a too good humored physiognomy." The stories which are appearing every Wednesday in the Post-Dispatch were for the most part told by Mr. Carrington himself over a smoking-room fire.

"THE advantages of booming to the actor, politician, society climber, or anyone else, are obvious," said Carrington, "but for a fellow engaged in my business, it's the very devil and all. I imagine a lot of people who are in the habit of circulating their photograph and record of kills among the nice! I once had a brief boom myself, and I know."

"That was after some jewel case, wasn't it?" Carrington nodded at the fire. "That was the time. A small but remarkably select and efficient gang—Flash Dick, Gentleman Charlie, Co.—had been working the whole country between Bond street and the city, and made a very lucrative trip to Birmingham, too. I happened to know old Rogers in Regent street, who was one of their victims. He asked my advice and I chanced to be lucky. Gentleman Charlie was a most superior person, I may mention, a credit to his public school. The other minor light got off, but we bagged the rest, and then my photograph got into the papers and like an ass I allowed a polished creature with broad around his coat to interview me for two minutes and read next morning a solid column of rubbish purporting to be the opinion of Mr. F. T. Carrington. Lord, how I wished that young man would commit an indictable offense and let me at him!"

On the other hand, I quite admit that it brought grist to the mill and for some time thereafter I was rather in request, especially if any jewelry came into the case. I don't mean necessarily when a crime had been committed, but human beings being the queer mortals they are, a baby would swallow a necklace and daddy would say "Oh, isn't there a man called Carrington who's an expert at recovering jewelry?"

The family would squabble over Aunt Maria's legacy, and some genius would remember Carrington the detective and call him in to value the paste diamonds and the calimnoms. Quite seriously, I did get some rum jobs about that time, but of course a few interesting cases too. One that presented a curious little problem was brought me by Mr. Headlam of Headlam, Stonewall & Jennings, the well-known solicitors. He called one day with his client, Sir Walter Basebrooke, an elderly baronet who was a place about an hour out from Paddington. We had only a short talk then, but Headlam and I arranged to go down together a couple of days later and go into the thing carefully. I began with that, and I can tell you it made me stare. The address was Waven Hall, near Highgate, Beds, and the signature seemed to read R. E. Merryweather, but I had never heard of the gentleman before, nor of Waven Hall. As far as I can remember it, the letter ran:

"Dear Sir—You will remember that you promised to return my emerald necklace by the end of the week at latest, when you said your examination of it for the purpose of comparing it with the imitation would be completed. It is now Thursday and the necklace has not reached me. Kindly return it by first post, after receipt of my package, registering the package. Yours truly, R. E. Merryweather."

"I never was more completely and absolutely mystified in my life than I was by my first reading of that letter. The second reading, however, suggested several possibilities. A practical joke, a letter put in the wrong envelope (for the writer hadn't added my name on the letter head), another Carrington—presumably a jeweler, or a connoisseur, or a lunatic. The last solution quite took my fancy and I pictured Waven Hall as a private session and Mr. Merryweather as an inmate with a delusion about jewels who had seen my name in the papers, and I imagined the doctor's annoyance when he discovered what his patient had been about."

"However, I had no time to deal with the letter that morning, so I laid it aside and opened the telegram. And again I got a bit of a jar, but this time of a different kind. It was from Headlam saying it was quite impossible for him to get away that day, and asking me, or rather commanding me, for it was couched in somewhat peremptory terms, to go down with him tomorrow instead."

"I glanced at my engagement book and saw that tomorrow was quite impossible. In fact, I was booked up every day for the rest of the week. I had left this day free at Basebrooke's particular request, and I was keen to go on my own account, because I was interested in what I had heard of the case. And finally, I was a little nettled at Headlam's dictatorial tone. So at last, after a few minutes' reflection, I decided I would go without him and try to smooth matters afterwards by a tactful explanation. Headlam's presence wasn't in the least essential, but he was scarcely the kind of gentleman the instinctive way of doing things had been on the telephone. I should have rung him up and tried to persuade him to come after all; only unfortunately he was an old-fashioned firm and at that time no telephone was installed in their office."

"The consideration of that telegram and letter, and a run through the rest of my correspondence exhausted all the time I dared spend in the office, so I put off writing to Headlam till I came back, but I called up, and set straight off for Paddington. However, it happened that the streets were clear, and the booking office window likewise, so that eventually I found myself sitting in a first-class smoking carriage with nearly a quarter of an hour to spare. I had bought a paper and just before settling down to read it, I cast my eyes out of the window in the instinctive way of doing things, and one sitting with only a sheet of glass between one's self and a bustling platform. And I assure you my two previous surprises were mere nothing to the surprise I got now."

"A young man, carrying a brown leather attache case, was strolling along the platform with his eye glancing at the train, evidently selecting a carriage. For an instant he seemed extraordinarily, almost shockingly, familiar and yet unplaceable in my memory. And then I recognized my own sinful self. He had the complexion, the light spats, the felt hat, everything most characteristic that I was wearing. His face, whether by nature alone or nature reinforced by art, was mine, or at all events near enough to deceive any ordinary acquaintance; and as far as I could judge of my own walk, he seemed to have either inherited or borrowed that, too. In fact he was simply me."

"You have no idea what an extraordinary sensation it is to see one's own self, usually strolling along a railway platform. It must be experienced to be appreciated. For a moment or two I sat absolutely fascinated. I didn't think in any proper sense of the term. Vaguely I accepted the conclusion that I had a double in the world, like people who sometimes read of in stories—and in real life police reports, too. And then the man half turned round to look at a pretty girl who was passing. Whether that is also one of my characteristics is not for me to say, but if it tended to for one he overshot the mark. For as he turned, the brown leather attache case swung round and for an instant showed its side to me. And there I read the legend painted in very fresh staring black letters, 'T. F. Carrington.' And then in a flash I knew he was no genuine double, no mere freak of nature. The man was impersonating me."

"Thank the Lord, I can generally think quick and also move quick when the emergency prods me up. Almost in the instant that realization came, I knew I was in a fix. I was crouching a bit, and backing away from the window. I saw the duplicate of Mr. F. T. C.'s eye leave the lady and turn again to the train, and then when he was nearly opposite, I knew he had selected my own compartment. How did I know? I saw him glance at the label 'smoking' on the window and his eye suddenly became satisfied. The next moment he had opened the door—and I was safely under the seat."

"I think it was Napoleon who said that his happiest inspirations were frequently only a recollection, or words to that effect. My own was founded on a mixture of my experience of falling on the ball to stop a forward rush, and of my recollection of seeing a rabbit go down a hole. The combination worked excellently. I didn't even bump my head, and I had the wit, moreover, to remember to take my paper with me. And then on top of that, or perhaps I should rather say at the top of it, I had a slice of luck. My duplicate fortunately selected the seat under which I was stretched, so that I was absolutely safe from observation."

"Though I was quite invisible to him, I could see his feet and his hands. He was sitting in the same first-class carriage, and I knew the right man had actually got into the carriage. And then, hardly daring to breathe, I waited for the train to start. But before it did start I felt that everything most characteristic that I was wearing. His face, gentleman above me. I rather grudged now having bought a ticket myself. I may add that I hadn't a shadow of doubt that like the two Mr. Carringtons, the tickets were twice as good as mine. "How I longed for that train to start! Something was tickling my nose and one foot was precious near catching a ramp, but I dared not move a muscle till the rattled and then I had begun. At last however, we were off and I very gently eased my nose and foot, and gradually, inch by inch, stretched myself out as comfortably as I could. But it was devilish hard to keep my feet in the carriage when I emerged from my lair. For a few minutes after we started there was silence in the carriage, and then I heard a familiar voice say:

"Good morning, Carrington."

"For a horrible instant I thought I was ignominiously spotted, and then I realized the situation and chuckled silently. There was a rustle of paper and I could feel the man over my head distinctly start. Then cool as a cucumber he answered:

"By Jingo, I'm sorry. I didn't recognize you for a moment. Good morning. How are you? Going to play golf?"

"It was quite brilliantly done. And what is more, the man imitated my voice and expressions and way of putting things with extraordinary fidelity. At least so far as I could judge. He had evidently been

LOUIS XVI AND EMPIRE FURNITURE

WITH Louis XVI the great period of French furniture came to an end and in the years of his reign before the revolution, in which so much of French art was destroyed with brutal ignorance, there was a reaction from the extravagance of Louis Quinze toward simplicity and refinement in accordance with the taste of the King and Marie Antoinette, his Austrian wife. But the mild and well-intentioned Louis and the young Queen could not check the disintegration started by his reckless predecessors. The deluge had to come, and for a time it swamped French culture.

After the revolution and the brief republic came the time of empire splendour, in which Napoleon sought to establish his dynasty. He turned for inspiration to the Roman ideas of imperial pomp and, encouraged the heavy splendour which we associate with those ideas. Most of the empire furniture was copied from the antique, is suitable in reception rooms or very elaborate and dainty bedrooms, and should be used with discretion, for its careless use betrays a ignorant and unrefined taste very clearly.

Nevertheless, as a whole, the empire left no very permanent impression on French domestic art. After its brief period of popularity, French, like English furniture of a corresponding period, merged during the nineteenth century into a general confusion of styles, produced by heterogeneous manufacture, not by any means losing all its beauty, but losing its national and periodic features to a great extent.

In general, French furniture, whether really antique, or copied from the antique, is suitable in reception rooms or very elaborate and dainty bedrooms, and should be used with discretion, for its careless use betrays a ignorant and unrefined taste very clearly.

And then Peter came to a little bedroom off just to one side.

hail a little bit bigger than the old one. Probably he was a little bigger himself when he made this than when he made the other. He hasn't left any roots hanging down in the way. My, I wouldn't mind having this house myself. I almost hope he isn't here. "Hello, here's a branch hall. I wonder where this goes to. Shall I try this or shall I keep on? Perhaps this leads to his bedroom." Peter poked his head in the branch hall and wrinkled his wabbling little nose. The faintest breath of fresh air tickled it. "Now I know," muttered Peter, with a great deal of satisfaction. This leads to one of Johnny's back doors, not to his bedroom at all. So Peter withdrew his head from that branch hall and continued on down the main hall. But he went very slowly. He would take a step, then stop and listen. Then he would do the same thing all over again. He was uncomfortable. He felt that he had no business in there. He knew that it was just curiosity that had brought him there. He knew that in a way

He was spying. But all the time he tried to excuse himself on the ground that he had a right to know if the house was deserted. "Of course," said he to himself, "if I find anybody at home I won't stop a minute. I'll go right out again. That's what I'll do, go right out again. All I want is to make sure that this house is or isn't occupied."

Soon Peter was down below the line where Jack Frost had frozen the earth. It was warm and very comfortable down here. That is, it was warm to Peter. You or I probably wouldn't have called it warm. But Peter did. He liked it. He began to hope that he would find Johnny Chuck's bedroom empty. It would be very nice to have a snug bedroom in such a comfortable house in stormy weather. And it wasn't far from the dear Old Briar-patch. Yes, sir, this would be just the place for little Mrs. Peter and himself to hunker down in during the bitter cold weather or during sleet and ice storms.

This idea pleased him so much that he sat quite a while thinking it over. By the time he started on again he had quite made up his mind that that house was deserted. It was because he wanted it to be so that he had made up his mind that it was so. Some people have a way of doing that.

And then Peter came to a little bedroom off just to one side. It was so dark down there that Peter couldn't see a thing. But if Peter couldn't see his eyes he could use his ears and his wabbling little nose. He listened for the faintest sound of someone breathing in that little bedroom, but his ears caught no sound. It was as still as if there were no living thing but himself there. But his wabbling little nose told him that there was somebody in that little bedroom, and it told him who it was. It was Johnny Chuck. Peter was disappointed. He was undecided what to do. Now that he had found out what he wanted to know he should have gone straight out, and he knew it. But that hall went on a little further and a dusty urge led him to find out how far it went. So Peter finally brought him to another little bedroom. There was someone in this also. It was Polly Chuck.

"That fairly shook the rascal up. 'What the—blank—do you mean?' he exclaimed. 'I'll tell you,' I said. 'If you will kindly explain the one mystery that has puzzled me. Why did you wire to say you didn't want to be met at the station?'"

"That blank blighter with the girl round him wouldn't trust me," said he. "The blunderer insisted on driving me himself. 'Well,' I said, 'that let you down badly. Did you notice a car passing you at 50 miles an hour on the road from the station?'"

"He had recovered his composure now. 'Oh, and so you were in it?' said he. 'I see the game now. But what about me in the train?'"

"You were sitting on top of the other F. T. Carrington," I explained, and I had the last laugh there. "Gentleman Charlie spent the next few years extremely quietly, and his costume didn't include spats or an eyeglass. But the rogue had had an uncommon good run for his money while it lasted. The way in which he impersonated me at Waven Hall and did the unfortunate Mr. Merryweather was a first-class effort of his kind, and he would very likely have done Sir Walter, too, if his luck hadn't turned."

"He took infinite pains. I found afterwards that he had sent a duplicate wire to my rooms in case I didn't go to my office that morning, and, of course, he had also wired to Headlam in my name commanding him to postpone our trip. But he overdid his cleverness twice; first in making that bogus wire from Headlam so peremptory, for that merely made me disinclined to consult Headlam's susceptibilities; and, secondly, in painting my name on his bag, for that roused me to a realization of his game. All the same, I think he was theoretically right in both instances, and luck was simply against him."

"In fact, to be perfectly candid, Gentleman Charlie had distinctly the best of the play, and the final score against him in that match between the two Carringtons didn't abdicate their respective merits in the least."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

JOB!

Though through his history we probe
With earnest application,
We always fail to find how Job
Amassed his reputation.
A patient man, it seems to us,
Though all his fortunes crumble,
Should never make a row or fuss
Or curse his luck or grumble.
Job lacked, as far as we can find,
The simplest stoic training;
He kept his troubles on his mind
And always was complaining.

When first he fell in Satan's toils
He roared with indignation;
When suffering a bit from boils
He cursed his generation.
Though kindly profits gathered round
To offer the prediction
That shortly would a way be found
To free him from affliction,
He swore that he no longer cared
Upon the earth to languish;
He tore his hair; his breast he bared;
He cried aloud his anguish.

Misfortune made more hard his lot,
But did he laugh and flout it,
And bear it mockingly? He did not;
He wailed about about it.
He reeled off yards of bitter verse
When rougher luck assailed him,
He launched a long pictorial curse
On everything that ailed him.
His gift of diction was enough
A splendid fame to win him,
He turned out great poetic stuff,
But patience wasn't in him!
